

Level 7 Systems Partnership Program can make you great commissions

The innovative communication solution provider Level 7 Systems is proud to announce their latest program designed to benefit website owners and web design companies alike. The new offering is titled the 'Partnership Program' and allows web design companies to turn a double profit from an essential e-commerce tool.

London, 1st September, 2010: As part of the Partnership Program, partners of Level 7 Systems are invited to resell the Level 7 Live chat service platform to their customers in exchange for a handsome commission on each sale. Thus, the web design companies benefit by offering the top of the line product to their clients while making an extra profit as part of the deal.

The Live Chat agent is a cost effective solution to meeting the needs of clients for web design companies given it does not require any infrastructure changes and is compatible with all new versions of IE and Mozilla Firefox as well as versions of both browsers over the past few years. Given the product requires simple computer skills and only casual HTML syntax knowledge to operate and launch, the live chat agent is the perfect solution for almost any client.

The live chat agent is so well designed for end users and tailored to meet even the most basic needs, that it is an easy sell to almost any client in search of a chat tool for their website. In fact, web design companies are likely to find that the product will sell itself without much need for marketing or pitching.

Level 7 Systems is committed to offering their solutions to everyone at a budget effective price and thus has agreed to handsomely accommodate all web designers that offer the product for resell with a high commission incentive. So, not only will clients be pleased to have their needs met in such an efficient manner, but a high profit can be earned on every sale as well making the Level 7 Systems Partner Program a web design companies dream.
