

Level 7 System Launches Business VoIP Service

Level 7 System, the Internet Telephony company, added the next generation business hosted PBX service to their already impressive portfolio. VoIPdito - a cloud based telephone service - will revolutionise the way businesses communicate.

London (UK), 1st September 2011 - "I am delighted to announce the launch of this ground-breaking business communication system that will change the telecommunications of the future." Hugh Porter, Chief Technical Officer, Level 7 Systems, said. "For several years Level 7 Systems have been busy looking for innovative ways of communications, seeking out client's feedback, and focusing on quality and reliability. VoIPdito will hopefully become all employer's cost saving and effective way of communication."

VoIPdito is a web based telephone system that companies of all sizes can tailor to their specific requirements. There is no need to install any hardware, so within a few minutes of signing up it is ready to use. In addition, the system is hosted in a data centre (the Cloud) thus it is maintenance free and all updates are provided by Level 7 Systems.

VoIPdito is now available to download for a completely risk free 30 day trial at:

Some of the features that set VoIPdito apart from traditional telephone systems are:

Virtual Telephone Numbers - VoIPdito can assign telephone numbers in more than 4000 cities around the world. It allows clients to call any company on their local number. As a result any business can be as close as possible to their clients and improve its image.

Mobile Application - turns any mobile device into a fully featured business telephone including functions like call transfers, call parking, etc. with an office extension number assigned to it.

Virtual Reception - a web based reception console that can be set up on any PC, that allows to transfer or park calls with a simple to use drag and drop feature. View all incoming and outgoing calls on one customized screen.

Free Internet Calls - in global economy a location is no longer an issue as all calls coming to mobile, telephone or PC within VoIPdito network are free.

Reduced Call Rates - the cost is significantly lower as all calls are routed over the Internet.
